There are at the present time ten sugar best factories in operation in the Uniput of over 2,00,000 tons for each sea

The German farmers net an average of 858 per acre for their beet crop each export bounty which the government pays on all beet sugar experted. But greater protection than the bounty does to those of Germany.

The German farmers of a given local ty unite and erect a co operative sugar factory with their own money, and thus make a profit larger than is possible if they simply raise beets and sell to the Poultry Wanted! they simply raise beets and sell to the factory outright. There is no reason why American farmers shall not nursus the same course.

It would build up at once a compet tion with the American Sugar Refining Company otherwise better known as the Sugar Trust which could not be b-ught off, and which would take the price of sugar out of the control of the trust. Sugar plants owned by farmers can live and do business with less risk than can the trust, because the farmers can clear their profit on the best crop by supplying their own factory, even should the latter not do more than pay its own running expenses. This the trust cannot do, and live, as its only chasce of profit les in the income from retining alone.

The field is a splendid one, and the live, progressive farmers of the United States should take possession of it. Through it they will add largely to the ncome from their farms, and make agriculture once more a highly profitable ecupation.

The Educational Test.

There is a genuine movement on foot in Louisiana to extend the educational d limit the ballot to those read and write the English language, with such other conditions of education and intelligence as may be agreed upon by the representatives of the people in the legislature. Under the constitution of Louisiana this can be done, and any reasonable educational or property qualification may be demanded as a condition of the full rights of citizenship.

Locally, it goes without saying, this means the disfranchisement of a large portion of the negro vote and a correponding diminution of the negro influ nce in the politics of the state. To this Capital Stock Paid Up. $20,000. extent it is class legislation, but it opens mate effect on the negro race. Disfranchisement for illiteracy would be a penalty that would stir the negro's energy and spur him to greater industry and more intelligent affort in the struggle to hold his own with the white. Negro illiteracy in the South is partly the misfortune, but as often the fault, of the individual. The neuroes are jealous of their civil rights, but proverbially indolent, and negligent of the opportunity to learn. Disfranchisement as a penalty for ignorance and illiteracy looks like a barsh septence to us, when we look at it from this distance; yet it seems that no other means can be found to stir the inert masses of the negro population of the South. If it were not for the fact that such a law will probably be distorted for the benefit of the white voters of Louisiana, and to keep the negroes in subjection, it would act as a wholesome stimulant upon the affected voters and raise the educational standard of the state more speedily and more effectually than any measure that could be > adopted. It is clearly an injustice to the intel ligent estizen to place him on a par with his ignorant and illiterate neighbor, and the educational qualification might be be open to less criticism than it is in

As the winterstyles settle preparatory to crystallizing into some one particular fact or fashion, it is not a difficult mat ter to select from the variety offered what really bids fair to become the prevailing mode. Coats are undoubtedly slowly but surely growing longer, not but that very short jackets, reefers, boleros, Russian blouses and Norfolk jackets, are still in vogue; but the tendency in the new heavy winter cloaks, in boucle and fur, is toward the garment reaching half or three-quarters way to the knees, with also a suggestion that the close fitting styles will supersede the double-breasted and fly-front effects. The Russian blouse with the added short skirt will, without doubt, continue in fashion throughout the winter, both in for and wool goods. Most of the coat sleeves are either small coat shapes or else very much reduced mutton-leg style, finished with a flare at the wrist
